DEDICATION

This book is dedicated to my parents, Ernest Milton Stubbs and Harriet Willis Bartholomew Stubbs, and to my husband, James Robert Boswell, Sr.

The value of diligence, application, character, faith, and family solidarity were honored and practiced by Ernest and Harriet. They learned these values from their ancestors. It is my wish that each of their descendants learn these same values.

It is because of the patience, assistance, and ever present encouragement of my husband that this book exists.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A proper genealogy is not only an accumulation of information; it is also an act of clarification--stripping away the sediments of myth, fantasy, and just plain error. It requires a lengthy assault of many fronts: a search for firm documentation in libraries and county clerk offices and military and state archives, from occassionally reluctant descendants, and often half-obscured tombstones.

Our ancestors did not have tape recorders, so we are denied the wealth of oral history which is rightly ours. Instead, we are forced to bring into play several disciplines within the behavorial sciences--history, sociology, psychology--in examining and evaluating the surviving evidence.

I have many people to thank for their cooperation and encouragement, too many, in fact, to be fully acknowledged here. It is, however, appropriate that I single out certain people and institutions whose cooperation figured most prominently in this project.

It is with a special warmth that I direct my thanks to William George Bilton, Ph.D., who served as editor for this book and prepared it for publication. Not only did William carefully check and recheck the genealogical information I provided him, but he developed narration throughout the book that sets our ancestors within a historical context. His goal, like mine stated in the introduction, was to make this history more than a "begat book." His efforts were tireless and his interest forever enthusiastic.

Others who helped me with this project are too numerous to list totally, but a few special individuals must be acknowledged for their assistance and support: Judy Lyons, who introduced me to the joys of genealogy; family members who supplied me with some invaluable material, Mary Ann Stubbs, Virginia Wright Stevens, Mary M. Harper, Bernice Martin Stubbs, Beatrice Jefferson Stubbs, Hattie Bartholomew Stubbs; and two special friends who aided this project in many ways: Terry Bergeson and Peggy Bilton. These individuals and those who cannot be listed have my heartfelt gratitude for their cooperation.

Without libraries, genealogists are, of course, in profound trouble. Among the many I visited, I single out the following: Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Branch Library, Los Angeles, California; Texas State Library, Austin, Texas; Dallas Public Library, Dallas, Texas; and Clayton Library, Houston, Texas.

EXPLANATION OF NUMBERING SYSTEM

In every large genealogy there is the effort to carry down the family names. After only a few generations, it is easy to see that one or more cousins could have the same name and therefore lead to confusion.

It is for this reason that some form of numbering system is used to identify the individuals in a family history. There are several systems, all with the same goal: to clearly identify the relationship between ancestors and descendants and hopefully avoid confusion.

The numbering system in this history has been kept simple and to a minimum. Complex numbers have not been assigned to each individual named in this book. Rather, a generation number has been assigned to each head of household. The number shows that generation the person named is in relation to the progenitor, or first generation. It is easy then to determine the generation of the children of a particular family.

For example:

James Ervin Stubbs[5]
(Robertson[4], John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

The generation numbers in this example tell us that James Ervin Stubbs belongs to the fifth generation of descendants of John Stubbs, Sr. It is easy to track backward from James Ervin through his father Robertson through his father John through his father Thomas, Sr. to the first generation, John Stubbs, Sr.

By using this simple numbering system, the reader can easily trace himself or herself back to John Stubbs, Sr., the ancestor whom this history chronicles.

INTRODUCTION

Someone has said "the man who has not anything to boast of but his illustrious ancestors is like a potato--the only thing belonging to him is underground. Edmund Burke, the English philosopher, however, looked at the situation in a bit more positive light. He wrote, "People will not look forward to posterity who never look backward to their ancestors." This is the basis for my own philosophy, drawn from a long and happy love affair with history. Education is based on the search for truth and where else can we find the origins of the paths our present-day lives other than on the highways laid down by our ancestors and clearly marked by them as a guide to us, their progency. They, our ancestors, are not lost. They have meticulously recorded themselves in all their goodness, evil, greatness, smallness, accomplishments, failures, nobility, and rascality. We, their progency, are perhaps a bit lost because we have not found direction from the past and are wandering like a rudderless ship on an uncharted course toward an unknown future.

To live in the past is, indeed, fruitless; but to look into the world of our forebearers is a fascinating trip. Their trails, pathways, roads, and highways are plotted quite clearly in census records, court records, wills, deeds, church records, letters, service records, and the memory of those who followed them. And, sometimes, the silences speak as clearly as the written or spoken words.

Family research is to be entered into only by the staunchly courageous and the fiercely honest--if one wishes the truth. If one's only motive in search is self-interest, then his task will be easier. Coats of arms and family fortunes and, sometimes, even royal ancestors are there for the choosing. However, identifying what is truly your own is not a matter of choice. History cannot be remodeled. If you can take it, go after it--but don't leave your sense of humor at home!

When you attempt to chronicle the history of a particular time or place or people, the result is a mosaic; a patchwork quilt stitched from solid historical records and colored by stories through the prisms of memories that may have no root in reality.

The history of the Stubbs family is no different. Parting the mists of time and separating fact from fancy is about as easy as seeing through the dense mists that periodically shroud mountain tops, and for that fact, the Stubbs story.

I have tried to not make this book a "begat" book. It is an effort to tell a story through this family of a fascinating epoch and continuing enlargement of American history, which is, after all, the story of its people. There are lineage charts, certainly, but primarily it is a tale of borning, living, loving, hating, and dying--a saga of life in all its facets of quiet dignity and picturesque rascality.

The path is not always as clearly defined as one would wish. But it has been of great help to strongly rely on trusted information contained in three sources: The Descendants of John Stubbs, by William Carter Stubbs, Ph.D.; History of Marlboro County, South Carolina, by the Reverend J. A. W. Thomas; and Abstracts of Division of Estates of Stubbs and Allied Families, by Leonardo Andrea and Joseph Edward Hill. Prior to his death, Mr. Hill and I maintained a lengthy correspondence in which he supplied me with some of the material used in this book.

Where research has been murkey to the point of a conflict of opinion or no actual documentation, I have been the arbitrary judge. I have done so in order to avoid, in so far as possible, the annoying use of the terms "probably" and "it would seem that" and "it's possible that." Since my name is on this book, I take responsibility for my decisions. There is always the possibility of misinterpretation. If this has happened, and it involves your ancestor, I hope you will follow up, pin down the facts, and inform me. I do not, however, take responsibility for family information given me by descendants which I have not been able to prove or disprove.

There must be errors in a work of this magnitude. It is just a fact of life one cannot ignore. However, I have endeavored to make it as factual as humanly possible. I will accept with grace any error pointed out with documentation. Hearsay to correct what is already hearsay is not valid, even if it is interesting.

In spite of problems, overwork, eyestrain, and lack of proof in some cases, this book has been a labor of love and a joyful journey for me through the past in the person of the Stubbs family. I hope my readers will share my great pleasure and satisfaction.

Chapter I

ORIGIN OF THE STUBBS FAMILY

Students of patronymics have claimed that the name Stubbs dates back in the United Kingdom to at least 1000 A.D. Alphege Stybb has been identified by G. Tengvik, the Swedish genealogist, in his book Old English Bynames.

England is a country of heavy fogs that often obscure more than just the landscape. Before the birth of Jesus Christ, in the days of Julius Caesar, Britian was a wild and desolate island inhabited by the Celts. As a result of the Roman, Anglo-Saxon, and Norman conquests, the English people became, by the 11th century, a conglomerate of races such as the American people became of these same races, plus the British and other European races after Christopher Columbus. Out of these confusing mists a pattern can be traced faintly, but proof is missing up until the 17th century.

By the 13th century, members of the Stubbs family are found living in the Forest of Knaresborough, Yorkshire, England. This Royal Forest of Knaresborough was a range of country about 20 miles in length and 8 miles in width. It was diversified with mountains and moors, rocky eminences and fertile valleys. Knaresborough Forest extended from the present town of Knaresborough westward and southwestward to the heather-clad hills overlooking Bolton Abbey.

The Stubbs name is thought to be derived from "stob" or "stub;" the root end of a broken tree. Such an object may have existed in the vicinity of the family residence, and hence, the family members received the designation "de" making the name "of Stubb" or "of Stubbs."

From a poem entitled "The Hunt," found in The Lays and Leaves of Knaresborough Forest, by the Reverend Thomas Parkinson, the following verses can be read:

"John Jeffrey of 'The Trees' is there,
And Stubbs of Whitewall Nook--
Guy Palmes of Lindley th' sport to share
Hath come o'er moor and brook."
* * * * *
"But oft a root though hid away
By shoot is not unknown,
And Fairfax, Stubbs, and Thackeray
Are names the world doth own."

Originally, Knaresborough Forest was a wild and rugged district with rich, heavily wooded valleys and uplands covered with ferns and heathers. It was a place admirably adapted as a refuge for the superstitions of the old British and Saxon creeds.

In medieval times, Knaresborough Forest was surrounded by feudal strongholds and ecclesiastical establishments of the first magnitude. At this time, there were more Roman Catholic convents, monasteries, and abbeys in Yorkshire than in any other section of England. It is within this setting that we find Henry de Stubbes and Richard de Stubbes named in the Hundred Roll of 1273.

Later, the lowlands were enclosed and cultivated. But wide, wild, uncultivated tracts of land remained open and unclaimed until the end of the 18th century, when by Act of Parliament, they were enclosed.

Modern times have completely changed the original scenes. Today, nothing remains of the Royal Forest of Knaresborough but its name. The town of Leeds has taken possession of the Washburn Valley and transformed it into a chain of reservoirs to supply water to its residents. What was once the obscure hamlet of Harrogate has developed into a fashionable and world famous town.

The Yorkshire Archaeological Society, in its Journal, has published a list of family names for the whole of Yorkshire, taken from the rolls of the King's Exchequer. These families paid a subsidy [tax] to King Richard II in the second year of his reign (June, 1378 - June, 1379). The text is in Latin, but can be easily translated. Among these names in their primitive spellings is found William Stubbe. The entry reads: Willelmus Stubbe et uxor: The home of William Stubbe and his wife was at Birstwith, then included in Villa de Clynt.

In addition to William Stubbe paying taxes to King Richard II, we find listed in the Poll Tax of Yorkshire Henricus de Stubbes, Alicia de Stubbes, Johannes Stubbe, and Johannes de Stubbes. The William Stubbe of 1379 was an ancestor of the illustrious Right Reverend William Stubbs, Bishop of Oxford. William Stubbe is also our ancestor.

Early references can be found to Stubbs also living outside the Knaresborough Forest area of Yorkshire. In B. A. Lee's Records of the Templars, Richard Stubbe appears in the year 1185 in Sussex. Reading Percy H. Reaney's Dictionary of British Surnames, we find that the Great Roll of the Pipes for Norfolk, compiled in 1199 at the command of King Henry II, names Geofrey de Stubbes. In the 1288 Assize Roll of Cheshire, Robert de Stubbes is listed. Again in Sussex, the 1296 Subsidy Roll names Thomas de la Stubbe; the same roll for 1327 lists Richard ate Stubbe. Yet again in Sussex, the Subsidy Roll for 1322 names William Stob.

The Journal of The Yorkshire Archaeological Society mentions that > about 1350 A.D. flourished Thomas de Stubbes, or Stubs, who was born in Yorkshire and entered the [Roman Catholic religious order] Black Friars at York and became a Master of Theology. He was remarkable for ecclesiastical learning and the religious life. He was ordained Priest December 20, 1343, A.D. in Durham Cathedral, but the date of his death is unknown. From his learned pen 14 valuable works proceeded.

From a sketch of the Stubbs ancestory, written by the late Bishop William Stubbs of Oxford, it appears > William Stubbe of 1379 A.D. had a son also named William, and his son, John de Stubbes, in 1430, was an officer--the Grave of the Forest of Knaresborough. John de Stubbes' son, William Stubbes, resided at Ripon, but John de Stubbes' property at Birstwith descended, in 1442, to William's son Thomas. This Thomas was followed, in succession, by his son, also named Thomas, in 1490. The second Thomas was also Grave of the Forest and therefore, had probably returned to the residence at Birstwith in 1498. His brother, William Stubbs, was chaplain, in 1516, to the Shepherd Lord Clifford of Skipton and Barden. Thomas Stubbs died in 1535 and his son, Miles Stubbs, died in 1555. Miles left three sons--William, John, and Thomas.

Miles Stubbs' eldest son, William, married Alice Bilton and went to reside at Fellscliffe in Yorkshire, the home of his wife's grandfather, Thomas Bilton, who died 26 October 1514, in the fifth year of the reign of King Henry VIII. Alice Bilton was the daughter of William Bilton, who died 1572. William Stubbs and Alice Bilton had three sons: Miles Stubbs, William Stubbs, and Thomas Stubbs.

Miles Stubbs' third son, Thomas, was born in 1573, fifteen years following the accension of Queen Elizabeth I to the English throne. While Thomas was still a young man, Oliver Cromwell ushered in the Commonwealth by the beheading of King Charles I. It was a brief interlude of glory for Cromwell in a kingless Britian. By 1659, the pressures of government had killed the Great Commoner. His son, "Tumbledown Dick," lasted only five months as his successor, and King Charles II was recalled to the throne in time to grant the Province of South Carolina to eight of his political buddies, known as the Lord Proprietors, in 1662. Charles was gone by 1685, leaving no legitimate heir. Catholic James II, his brother, succeeded to the throne, determined to restore Catholicism to England which would have no part of it. In less than four years, King James II fled the country leaving it still a Protestant stronghold under William of Orange.

Thomas Stubbs resided at Whitewall and died there in 1648, aged 75 years.

Thomas, the son of Thomas of Whitewall, was connected by marriage with the Atkinsons who held one of the principal farms under the Ingilby family of Ripley at Haverah Park. Between 1664 and 1672, he succeeded Thomas Atkinson as tenant.

His son, Thomas Stubbs born 1650, married Alice Simpson of Clint and died in 1716. Though tenants on the farm of Haverah Park, the family was of substantial yeoman rank, and owned considerable property in the neighborhood.

Only two years following Thomas Stubbs' birth, John Stubbs, son of a Mr. Stubbs of the London Company emigrated to the colony of Virginia and settled in Gloucester County in 1652. John Stubbs thus started the American branch of the family. This 1652 date is apparently correct, since the Gloucester County land was opened to settlers in that year and records of the county land transactions in 1671 refer to "Stubb Spring" as a landmark with the name already fixed by common usage.

It is during this time that we reach more solid and less speculative ground in regards to the Stubbs family. As the English Revolution of 1688-1689 was building up, Thomas Stubbs had grown to manhood, taken up farming, and was thriving in Haverah Park. While John Stubbs was becoming settled in Virginia, his relatives in England continued to be exposed to a rowdy time in their lives. These events did not fail to affect our immigrant's life either. At this point, the new American colonies and their motherland were too tightly knitted together for an event in one not to affect the other.

The rowdy times in England included Queen Anne taking John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, an able general of her armies, and his termagant wife, Sarah Kendall, to her heart, making the Duke her Commander-in-Chief and the Duchess her favor-grabbing favorite. Loyalities were purely subjective and changing political partners became a favorite pastime. When the dust settled, England had Portugal (and Port Wine), Gibralter, Minocra, and Arcadia in the New World in her pocket, but the Tories wormed back into power yelling for peace. The Duke and Duchess were discarded and disgraced by the Peace of Utrecht.

It was all too much for Queen Anne. She died, leaving 675,000 inhabitants in London, 350,000 British colonists in America, and a non-English speaking, cold, stingy German bully on the throne in the person of the first Hanoverian George.

But years of compromise and moderation, spiced with humanity and cooperation, made England a land of decent harmony and quiet strength, out of which grew the Industrial Revolution, instigated by John Kay's flying shuttle. John Kay was born 10 July 1704, near Bury St. Edmonds, Lancaster, when Richard Stubbs, the grandfather of the main focus of this book--John Stubbs--had been only a year in Bath County, North Carolina.

In England this was the age of sheep farming along with cloth trade; agricultural improvement with its emphasis on grain; and the birth of the cloth trader, the middleman. Thus began the rise of the common man from nonentity and serfdom toward the halls of power.

Common sense began to raise its head from the quagmire of religious superstition and lunacy. A woman charged with witchcraft in 1712 and accused of flying was ordered released by a judge--truly a man ahead of his time--who remarked that there was no law against flying!

Even though living in the southern colonies of America, our John Stubbs was exposed to all these timely changes and exciting events. He was a contemporary of scientific, philosophical, and literary minds of his day: Samuel Johnson, Alexander Pope, Johnathan Swift, Edmund Burke, Joseph Addison, Daniel Defoe, John Locke, and Sir Issac Newton. None of these changes and events went unnoticed or unfelt in America.

As John quietly reared his growing family, royalty still glittered in marble palaces across the ocean. It rattled its sabers against those who threatened its security from within or without its domains.

The son of John Stubbs, the immigrant, was also named John Stubbs. He was the husband of Sussanah _____ and the father of four boys: Richard, Thomas, John, and Francis.

About 1703, Richard Stubbs, grandson of the original immigrant, left Virginia and settled in Bath County, North Carolina. Richard had at least two sons: Thomas and James.

James, the second son of Richard, had at least one son, John. John was given a Royal Grant of 50 acres of land in the township of Williamsburg, in the county of Craven, South Carolina on 16 September 1738.

It is this John Stubbs whom this history traces.

Chapter II

STUBBS ROOTS GROW IN 18th CENTURY VIRGINIA

As in England, the 18th century opened in the Province of Virginia on a note of comparative calm and prosperity. For one thing, Virginia's population was homogeneous. It was, in large part, purely English and, therefore, did not have to contend with divergent nationalities as did other colonies, both to the North and to the South.

Momentarily she was free of Indian outrages and her population was expanding rapidly. Religious difference did not trouble the calm of social waters. All in all, it was a good time, a stable time with Virginia being better governed than other colonies. The settlers could turn their minds and energies to the development of trade and tobacco culture. They were trying to establish ports, strengthen defense both inland and on the coast. Attention was given to a strong church and clergy. Even a college was under discussion.

Before the Revolution of 1689, there had been a tendency by governors to appoint Catholics to office and to restrict the independence of the members of the House of Burgesses. But now both tendencies had passed. Affairs in Virginia returned to normal; the established county families continued in their positions of leadership.

Wealth was on the rise with its attendant employment of slaves increasing, and the plantation system settled in comfortably on its large estates. Virginia's sun was high in the sky.

In 1727, King George II took his seat upon the English throne and sent William Gooch to Virginia as governor. Gooch's long service to Virginia and the Crown was a steadying influence on both until his departure in 1742.

The Stubbs family had been present to enjoy some of the calm life in the Province of Virginia. But they had been in the colony prior to the "good days" and left as they were only beginning.

In 1652, John Stubbs, a son of a Mr. Stubbs of the London Company emigrated to the colony and settled in Gloucester County. John Stubbs thus started the American branch of the family. This 1652 date is apparently correct, since the Gloucester County land was opened to settlers in that year. Records of the county in 1671 refer to "Stubb Spring" as a landmark with the name already fixed by common usage.

This book traces Richard's grandson, John, son of James, who was living in South Carolina by 16 September 1738, when he received a Royal Grant of 50 acres of land in the township in Williamsburg, in the county of Craven. Therefore no additional information regarding the Stubbs family in Virginia is provided. Nor has North Carolina been researched. This book begins with John Stubbs in 18th century South Carolina.

Chapter III

STUBBS ROOTS SPREAD TO SOUTH CAROLINA AND EVENTUALLY INTO TEXAS

Years before the outbreak of the actual physical combat of the American Revolution, the great Virginia dynasties were beginning to crumble. Generations of easy living on the fruits of their pioneer ancestors' determined industry had engendered a debilitating indolence in the mid-eighteenth century Virginia planters. Great estates were left in the hands of overseers, while masters accepted as inevitable the ease and grace of a life of wealth. The attitude of the government of the mother country was strangling the economy of the colonies while it favored London monopolists. Due to the farming practices of the Colonial planter, the price of tobacco was plummeting as taxes rose. A goodly percentage of unwary planters had depended so long upon the credit extended by their London factors that many Virginia plantations, in fact, virtually belonged to English merchants who were hesitant to throw the Colonial owners into bankruptcy. If they did, the planters could not pay, the factors must take over the land and mortgaged manor house--and who would supervise these vast estates? The mortgagor wouldn't and the mortgagee couldn't. It was a mess.

After 150 years on the land, the Virginia planter was versed only in the cultivation of tobacco. He was totally ignorant of how to diversify into wheat and corn. Apples were grown only for local consumption in the form of cider. Suddenly, his great inheritance became an albatross.

Against this unhappy set of affairs was the situation in South Carolina, the younger of the colonies. The Back County, with its vast cane brakes, its clear rushing streams teeming with shad, bass, and bream, and its healthy air free of tidewater miasmas (common in Virginia) was practically empty of human habitation, if one excepted its native population, the Indian.

The Cherokee Indian, at this point in time, was considered anything but human and was accorded no rights as such. From the days of Robert Johnson, the first English Royal Governor of South Carolina, the Cherokee had been, first gently, and then more and more roughly and inexorably inched out of the boundaries of the colony. He slunk sullenly and resentfully onto the slopes and into the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, where he waited. The Cherokee War of 1761 had nearly wiped him out. King and colony joyfully exploited his erstwhile kingdom, granting land freely to any intrepid soul who would place himself as a buffer between the Low Country and the smoldering menace on the mountains, as well as the unknown of the beyond.

Although the Cherokee War had broken the back of the Indian threat to the Carolina Back Country, this area had not filled up. The defeat of England's Major General Edward Braddock, during his 9 July 1755 attack on Fort Duquesne (now Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania) and the surprising uprising by the Ottawa Indian chief, Pontiac, who became a great intertribal leader when he organized a combined resistance to English power in the Great Lakes area, had thrown the entire Western frontier from New York to southern Georgia into panic.

Then came the Bounty Law of 1761. The South Carolina General Assembly, in Charleston, scrambled to parcel out in the King's name the rolling hills of the Up Country to any prospective settlers who would guard the back door, so to speak, of the Tidewater aristocrat living by now in comparative ease and splendor. From Virginia, sister state North Carolina, France, Germany, Scotland, and Ireland settlers poured in, eager for free land, no matter how rolling, as long as they could hold it in fee simple; fell the gigantic trees for homesteads; fish from its glutted, clear streams; hunt the abundant wild game; and bask in its pleasant climate.

Having been reared under the cloud of Indian terror, the new Carolina settler from other provinces had become inured to constant danger. The French Hugeunots felt the Indian threat would be less galling than King Louis XIV's Catholic legions. At least the Hugeunot could worship as he pleased--if he lived through it. The Germans found almost any conditions an improvement over those to which they were accustomed. The Scotch-Irish, adventurers all, put their fighting strength to work on grants that were more than a hundred times as large as one small man's earthly kingdom in Ulster.

To King George III for his gracious bounty, all were deeply grateful and eager to get in on the free grants. Many settlers in Virginia and colonies north responded to the opportunity and set out down the Great Philadelphia Wagon Road toward South Carolina.

This situation more than likely lured our John Stubbs, Sr. into the Cheraw District of South Carolina. But prior to all this activity, he had already come to South Carolina. By 16 September 1738, he was living in the township of Williamsburg in Craven County, South Carolina, where he received a Royal Grant of 50 acres of land.

John Stubbs, Sr. had arrived only a few years prior to the tumultuous 1760s and must certainly have been aware of this struggle for freedom. Bringing raw wilderness land into cultivation was not in itself an insurmountable problem, but it was a back-breaking task, especially when the Indian menace was still a lurking danger, inspite of the resounding Chreokee defeat in 1761. By 1765, it was thought expedient to rebuild Fort George, levelled just four years before. Fort Charlotte, new and built of stone, arose on the Savannah River on the South Carolina end of the ford by which the Creek Indians occasionally made devastating forays into South Carolina from Georgia.

John, along with hundreds of other Quaker and Protestant emigrants, had been lured with sweet promises and gifts of bounty land just for the purpose of buffering the Tidewater from Indian incursion. Between 1771 and 1774, John received Royal Grants for 1,000 acres of land in and near the Beauty Spot of then Craven County, in what is present-day Marlboro County, South Carolina. Copies of these Royal Grants, dated 10 April 1771, 23 December 1771, 21 April 1774, and 23 June 1774, may be seen in Chapter XI.

Between 1771 and 1774, the climate of living in South Carolina and the other colonies had undergone a subtle change. Generations of settlers who had nothing to depend on but colossal courage, determination, and back-breaking work had developed a new breed of American fiercely and militantly independent. Courteously, at first, they warned the King that his government was encroaching on the rights of its loyal Colonial subjects and prayed solemnly that he correct unwarranted taxes on their imports and the injustices of limits on their trade. It seems that both King and Parliament were hard of hearing. While trouble was brewing abroad with the home government, problems were also developing on the domestic front.

The Colony of South Carolina had only one seat of justice. This was located at Charleston--miles and days, or even weeks, away from the now termed (in derision and contempt by their Low Country neighbors) Back Country inhabitants. The opening up of this territory had not only drawn industrious farmers and traders, but also the lowest form of wastrel who preyed on the farmers' crops and kin. Repeated protests and demands for protection against these banditti to the General Assembly, now totally preoccupied in its picque with England, had gotten no results. Fed up with the intolerable situation, the Up Country proceeded to organize the Regulators as its own arm of the law--and a shoot-first-talk-later body it was. It produced certain edifying results and annoyed the Charleston government into its own protests against certain citizens taking the law into their own hands. No lesser person than Patrick Calhoun, father of South Carolina's preeminent statesman John Caldwell Calhoun, marched well fortified, in more ways than one, to Charleston, where he spelled out in no uncertain terms that the law would remain in the same unauthorized hands until the General Assembly established district courts in situations convenient to the inhabitants above the Fall Line. This confrontation finally produced the desired effect in the Circuit Court Act of 1769. Seven judicial districts were formed: Beaufort, Camden, Cheraw, Charlestown, Georgtown, Orangeburg, and Ninety Six. This ended one long and bitter struggle between Low and Up Country, but the memory of it remained in the minds and hearts of the Back Country settlers long enough to make many a man decline to march against a sovereign whose beneficence had given that settler his home. Many felt that the worst enemy might be on the coast of their own colony, rather than across the ocean on the English throne.

Much grumbling and many meetings were going on in Charleston in protest of the English Government's high handed treatment of its loyal citizens in the American colonies.

The Townshend Act, permitting special trading privileges in the colonies to the incredibly poorly managed East India Company, and the imposing of an import tax on tea, had passed in 1767. That had caused no great flap until December 3, 1773, when 257 chests of tea from the company arrived in Charleston. This was sezied upon as an outlet for the rising frenzy of anger fed by wordy meetings held almost daily in taverns, private homes, public meetings, and even in the lower house of the General Assembly. For once, South Carolina acted with more head than heart. Unlike Massachusetts, which had wasted its tea by dumping it into the sea, in the famous Boston Tea Party affair, Lieutenant Governor William Bull of South Carolina commandeered the offensive cargo and had it stored by customs officers in the Exchange Building. There it remained until 1776, when the state government fell into the hands of the Patriots. Then the tea was sold to provide revenue for defending the colony against the English.

A called meeting at Charleston, in July of 1774, including for the first time delegates from the Back Country, resulted in the election of other delegates to a first Continental Congress to be held in Philadelphia in September. All sorts of resolutions were proposed in Philadelphia to bring the English Parliament to its sense.

More tea arrived, and this time it was dumped into the Cooper River and Wynyah Bay. The Back Country was suddenly heard from. Grand juries from Camden, Cheraw, and Ninety Six districts sent presentiments to the Commons House that Parliament's efforts to tax the American colonies were "grievences of the most alarming nature."

1 January 1775 dawned on an almost breathless note. A Provincial Congress was called, meticulously including ten Back Country members from between the Broad and Saluda rivers. Up and Low Country sat down in initial harmony, but arguments were not long in developing. Not accustomed to formal parliamentary procedures with debates, moves, reports, amendments, recalls ad finitum accompanied by windy mouthings of high-sounding rhetoric, the blunt-talking and quick-acting frontiersmen were roused to ire. Exasperated beyond endurance, they threatened to withdraw in a body and block all proceedings unless business before the Congress be concluded "today." Equally annoyed, Henry Laurens snapped that the Up Country brethern thought government matters were as easily concluded as "the bargain and sale of a cow." This brought an equally acid rejoinder that all such flowery speeches at the Continental Congress had resulted in was the exemption of rice from the non-exportation rule to save Low Country hides. No such provisions had been suggested to protect the Back Country which had no intention of having its interests overridden!

In the North, April brought an exchange of musket fire between English Regulars and Provincial Minutemen at Lexington and Concord. In the South, South Carolina seized the public ammunition in Charleston. These two events committed Great Britian and her American colonies to war.

South Carolina's first move was to draft Articles of Association that brooked no compromise:

> We therefore the subscribers, inhabitants of South Carolina holding ourselves bound by that most sacred of all obligations, the duty of good citizens toward an injured country...do unite ourselves under every tie of religion and of honour, and associate, as a band in her defense of every foe: Hereby solemnly engaging that, whenever our Continental or Provincial Councils shall decree it necessary, we will go forth, and be ready to even sacrifice our lives and fortunes to secure her freedom and safety...and we will hold all those persons inimical to the liberty of the colonies who shall refuse to subscribe this association.

This drew the line between Patriot and Loyalist, dividing friends and even families, as is always the case in civil war.

John Stubbs, Sr. was living in Cheraw District in the summer of 1775. That summer was a hot one, both physically and politically. Tempers flared and even the gentle breezes from off the Blue Ridge Mountains failed to cool the even atmosphere around Cheraw. In July, Patriots were ordered to Fort Charlotte to take possession of arms and ammunition placed there by the Royal Government as protection againt the Indians. It all came about peacably, but aroused suspicion among those who were leery of both the Continental and Provincial congresses.

John Stubbs, Sr. joined the Patriots in condemning English taxation of the colonies, just as did most thinking Americans of the time.

Following the incident at Fort Charlotte, Patriot representatives were sent up the road from Charleston to try to make their case among the defectos of the Back Country. Many of the settlers there were known to have no inclination to join up with large number of Low Country insurrectionists. In their saddlebags they carried the Articles of Association.

It was in this historical context that John Stubbs, Sr. and five of his sons aided the Patriots' cause in the fight for American freedom. John Stubbs, Sr.--the father--was too old for campaigning. He assisted the American cause for independence by his contributions of food for men and horses from Cheraw District, South Carolina. A copy of the State of South Carolina's indebtedness to John Stubbs for these provisions may be seen in Chapter XI. Five of his sons--William, James, John, Lewis, and Stephen--were active Revolutionary War soldiers. It is believed that Stephen Stubbs died while performing his military services.

Chapter IV

FAMILY OF JOHN STUBBS, SR.

John Stubbs, Sr. was born ca. 1718, fourteen years prior to George Washington's birth in 1732. His place of birth is unknown. However, we know that his father, James, was born after his father, Richard, had left the colony of Virginia in 1703. John, Sr. died in Marlboro District, South Carolina, on 21 October 1788.

John, Sr. was physically a small man. He was a weaver by trade; a Quaker by faith. Prior to 1748, he married Rebecca Conner, a very large lady. Rebecca died in Marlboro District, South Carolina between 1771 and 1785. After 1785, he married again, this time to Edith Stubbs.

The Rt. Rev. Alexander Gregg, in his History of the Old Cheraws, mentions the name of John Stubbs. He writes that in November 1753, John, Sr. took up a grant of land on Catfish Creek in Marion County, neighboring Marlboro County. It is Bishop Gregg's conclusion that John was undoubtedly the ancestor of the large connection of the Stubbs name in Marlboro District, South Carolina. As of this Noveber 1753 date, John Stubbs, Sr. had been in South Carolina for at least 15 years, because we have recorded proof he was given a Royal Grant of 50 acres of land in the township of Williamsburg, in the county of Craven, South Carolina, on 16 September 1738.

John Stubbs, Sr. and his family were Quakers. Since it is known that he took up a grant of land on Catfish Creek in Marion, and lived and died in Marlboro County, South Carolina, it is possible to deduce that he attended the Pee Dee Quaker Monthly Meeting.

The Pee Dee Monthly Meeting existed as early as 1740. It was located in several different places within the state of South Carolina before it was placed under the Piney Grove Monthly Meeting in 1801. It was still an active Monthly Meeting at the time of John Stubbs, Sr.'s death on 21 October 1788.

During John, Sr.'s life time, Quakers prospered under the climate of freedom in South Carolina. Many who had seen their estates laid waste by fines, seizures, or imprisonment during persecution in England or the West Indies, amassed large fortunes in South Carolina. From many sources, it is known that John, Sr. acquired extensive land holdings in the Marlboro District. He may not have been as vastly wealthy as many of the Low Country Quaker families, but he and his family would certain have been comfortably middle class.

As the large plantation economy based on slavery spread over the Piedmont section of South Carolina, Quakers (Friends) were increasingly confronted with the reality of just how brutal slavery was. At estate sales, Quakers saw husbands sold away from their wives and little children separated from their mothers. South Carolina even made it illegal to teach a slave to read the Bible. It was also against the law to free one's own slaves. It became clear to Quakers that the climate of slavery and greed dominating South Carolina was totally incompatible with their view of Christianity. There was no way a Quaker could live there and be faithful.

Although John Stubbs, Sr. did not live long enough to take part in the massive exodus of Quakers from both South Carolina and Georgia, this was the beginning of the movement out of the area for his descendants. Between the years 1799 and 1830, the large majority of Quakers left the two states for territory where they could rear their children free from the influence of slavery. Quakers scattered into northern states and into southern states, such as Tennessee, where slavery had much less influence. By 1822, Charleston was the only Quaker Monthly Meeting left in either South Carolina or Georgia.

Quakers who remained behind in South Carolina had their membership transferred to Monthly Meetings in North Carolina. Many even joined other denominations, such as Baptists and Methodists. Many of these Quakers' children joined a later migration to Alabama, Mississippi, and Texas in the mid-1800s. It is this second exodus that led to the movement of our line of Stubbs into Alabama, Mississippi, and finally into Texas.

John Stubbs, Sr. and his first wife, Rebecca Conner, had six sons:

William Stubbs, born 22 December 1748, died 26 June 1839.
John Stubbs, Jr., born 1754, died 1792.
James Stubbs, born 1755, died 25 August 1825.
Lewis Stubbs, born 1760, died 1845.
Stephen Stubbs.
Thomas Stubbs, born 1768, died 18 June 1847.
There may have been daughters, but no proof has been found.

Chapter V

LINE ONE: WILLIAM STUBBS

(John Sr.[1])

The first son of John Stubbs, Sr., William was born 22 December 1748 in Craven County, South Carolina. He died 26 June 1839 in Marlboro County, South Carolina. He married first Elizabeth Hubbard. She was the daughter of Peter Hubbard and Agnes Chiles, who came to South Carolina shortly after 1750 from Caroline County, Virginia. Peter and Agnes were married during the Cedar Creek Monthly Meeting (Quaker) on 12 November 1744.

William married second Anne Fuller McDaniel Stubbs. Anne was the widow of his nephew, John Stubbs. They married in 1830, when William was 81 and Anne was 58. The Rev. Campbell Stubbs performed the ceremony.

William lived long enough to qualify for a federal pension under the Act of 1832 for his Revolutionary War service, which did not require that the applicant be destitute. All prior laws had this requirement. Therefore, the percentage of Revolutionary War soliders who became pensioners is small.

When William died 26 June 1839, he was receiving a Revolutionary Soldier's pension. After his death his widow, Anne Fuller McDaniel Stubbs Stubbs, continued to draw this pension. She was still living when the War Between the States broke out, and her pension was stopped. After the end of the war, she was restored to the pension roll. She lived to be very old.

William Stubbs and Elizabeth Hubbard had three sons and six daughters:

William Stubbs, Jr., married Sarah Ikenor.

Peter Stubbs, born 1780 to 1784 in Marlboro County, South Carolina, died ca. 1848 in Simpson County, Mississippi.

James Stubbs, married Sarah Fuller.

Rebecca Stubbs, married Shadrack Easterling. He died 20 August 1829.

Nancy Stubbs, married Jacob Odom.

Anne Stubbs, married William Morris, Jr. In 1813, she and her husband and large family and her brother, Peter, obtained a passport to journey through the Indian lands to Mississippi.

Frances Stubbs, married Benjamin Moore. He was born in 1769 in Richmond County, North Carolina, and died 1846.

Elizabeth Stubbs, married Henry Welsh.

Martha Stubbs, born 1784, died 1829, married Elisha Hill (1780-1856).

William Stubbs, Jr.[3]

(William [2], John Sr.[1])

The first son of William, Sr., we do not know when or where William Stubbs, Jr. was born or died.

We do know that by 1812, he was living in Washington County, Georgia. He moved to the state prior to his marriage in 1805.

At the time that we find William, Jr. living in Georgia, the state was a place of turmoil. When the Colony of Georgia was established in 1732, its territorial limits included almost all the present state of Mississippi and at least one-half of the state of Alabama. After years of hasseling with the United States government, Georgia agreed, in 1802, to cede to the U.S. this wide expanse of land to the West. However, Georgia had wrung from the Federal Government a stipulation, beyond the $1,250,000 paid to the state, that the Federal Government, at its own expense, should "extinguish for the use of Georgia as soon as the same can be peaceably obtained on reasonable terms" the Indian title to all lands within the newly established boundaries of the state. Several treaties followed. Time passed slowly for both Georgian and Cherokee while, little by little, the white man wormed his way by frequent cautious nibbles--a right of way here, an illegal settlement there--into the red man's dwindling homeland. On 8 July 1817, another large cession of Cherokee lands tolled the death knell of Cherokee land in Georgia and emigration began.

He married Sarah Ikenor and had four sons and five daughters:

Rowland Stubbs, born 1806, died 1885, married (1) _____ Bailey, (2) Jane Turner, born 1819 in South Carolina, died 1908.
Hubbard Stubbs, married Emaline Mask.
Dennis Stubbs, married unknown.
William Stubbs, no issue.
Nancy Stubbs, married S. T. Whitaker.
_____ Stubbs, married William Lee.
Martha Ann Stubbs, married Allen Thompson.
Rebecca Stubbs, married unknown.
Sarah Stubbs, married unknown.

While William, Jr. raised his family the troubles with the Cherokees continued. Conditions created a life lived always on the defensive. Although treaties were agreed to and signed by both the Cherokee Nation and the United States government, many ramifications left many of the desired results beyond grasp.

Rowland Stubbs[4]

(William, Jr.[3], William[2], John, Sr.[1])

Rowland Stubbs, born 1806 in Fayette County, Georgia, died 1885, was the first son of William Stubbs, Jr. and Sarah Ikenor. He married twice and had two familes.

By his first wife, _____ Bailey, Rowland had two children:

Bailey Stubbs, born 1830.
William Stubbs, born 1835.

By his second wife, Jane Turner, (born 1819 in South Carolina, died 1908) he had six sons and one daughter:

Mary J. Stubbs, born 1843.
Zachary Taylor Stubbs, married Mattie Whatley.
D. Wesley Stubbs, married Mary Harp Turner.
Jefferson Davis Stubbs.
Joseph Brown Stubbs.
Caprus Stubbs.
Benjamin Stubbs.

In addition to the above known children by his second wife, Rowland Stubbs may have had the following four children:

Frances Stubbs Barfield.
Emily Stubbs Moore.
Laura Stubbs, died young.
Frank Stubbs.

Rowland Stubbs was living in Fayette County, Georgia, in 1840, when he is shown administering the estate of his father, William Stubbs, Jr.

Peter Stubbs[3]
(William[2], John, Sr.[1])

We know very little about Peter Stubbs, the second son of William, Sr. He was born 1780-1784 in Marlboro District, South Carolina, and died in 1848 in Simpson County, Mississippi. The name of his wife, whom he married before 1800, is unknown, as are the names of eight of his 11 children. We do know he was named for his grandfather, Peter Hubbard.

We also know that he was issued a passport to travel through the Indian Nation in Georgia in 1813. It is also known that Peter Stubbs was influencial in settling Simpson County, Mississippi. He was appointed by the Mississippi State Legislature to help survey the new county of Simpson and determine the location to build a court house.

Martha Stubbs[3]
(William[2], John, Sr.[1])

Martha Stubbs was born 1784 in Marlboro County, South Carolina. She died 1829, in Fayette County, Gerogia, where she had moved between 1825 and the year of her death. In 1807, she married Elisha Hill, born 1780, died 26 December 1856.

Martha "Patsy" Stubbs and Elisha Hill had four sons and six daughters:
Unknown son, died young.
Anne Hill, born 26 March 1810, died 29 April 1851, married 5 August 1829 the Rev. Elias Wells Story, born 15 April 1807, died 18 December 1889.
John W. Hill, born 15 January 1812, died 27 November 1884, married 13 November 1849 Elvirah McGriff.

Elizabeth Hill, born 1826, died 1896, married Andrew J. Henderson.
Elisha Griffin Hill, died young, ca. 1847.

Anne Hill[4]

(Martha Stubbs Hill[3], William[2], John, Sr.[1])

Anne Hill was born 26 March 1810 in Marlboro County, South Carolina. She married the Rev. Elias Wells Story, on 5 August 1829 in Fayette County, Georgia. Anne had moved to Fayette County in 1826. In 1843, they relocated to Macon County, Alabama, where Anne died 29 April 1851. Burial in Cotton Valley Cemetery, Macon County, Alabama.

The Rev. Elias Wells Story, a Methodist minister, was born 15 April 1807 in Warren County, Georgia. The name of his father is unknown, but we do know that his mother was Phoebe Ann Brooks. When Elias was 3 years old, according to Marion Elias Lazenby's History of Methodism in Alabama and West Florida, his family moved to Jackson, Girardeau County, Missouri. It was there that Elias Wells Story was baptized by the Rev. Jesse Walker, a pioneer mid-West Methodist minister.

The Story family moved back to Georgia. It was there, in Fayette County, that Elias Wells Story and Anne Hill married. Elias became associated with the Methodist Church in Georiga in 1827, at the McDonough Campground in Henry County. In 1836, he joined the Georgia Conference from the Zebulon Circuit, Columbia District. In January 1840, he transferred to the Alabama Conference. In 1841, he delivered the first sermon ever heard in Girard, Alabama. The Rev. Elias Wells Story made history and aroused criticism and opposition when, in 1845, he headed the first Black circuit in East Alabama; the Killabee Colored Mission in the Montgomery District.

The Rev. Elias Wells Story was described as having quaint ways, a sharp wit, clear common sense, a fiery temper, a stubbon will, an intense zeal and as having labored untiringly. He has been described as having an Elijah-like faith and courage, found in a bony, wizard-like body. He seems to have embodied the attributes of a religious hero. He could excite his congregation to laughter or move it to tears. His listeners went away with a more vivid conviction of the righteousness and mercy of God, the evilness of sin, and the power of the Holy Spirit to save their souls.

It has been written that whenever it was known that the Rev. Elias Wells Story was going to preach, there were few stragglers about the tent doors. It has been pointed out that children took an unusual interest him. Because of his many talents, the Rev. Elias Wells Story was able to manage both masters and slaves.

Anne Hill and the Rev. Elias Wells Story had five sons and four daughters:

Calvin Story, M.D., born 28 January 1831, Fayette County, Georgia; died 24 October 1912, Cherokee County, Alabama; married Patience P. McGriff 26 May 1853 in Paulding County, Georgia.

Martha Ann Story, born 25 July 1833, died 2 June 1917, married John Uriah Hoffman 6 January 1853.

Elias Wells Story, Jr., born 8 April 1835, died 17 June 1926, married Betsy Jane Harris 8 December 1868.

Lucinda Story, born 21 September 1837, died 7 November 1861, married the Rev. Ethelbert B. Norton 9 August 1859.

Sarah Jane Story, born 15 June 1839, died 15 June 1927, married Wilbur Fisk Perry 9 August 1859.

George Chappell Story, born 13 February 1841, died 1 July 1903, married Josephine Elizabeth Noble 14 November 1866.

James Osgood Story, born 20 January 1843, died 23 August 1862 in Mobile, Mobile County, Alabama, during the War Between the States.

John Wesley Story, born 25 March 1845, died 14 June 1863, in the Confederate Hospital, Petersburg, Virginia, during the War Between the States.

Frances Elizabeth Story, born 4 March 1849, died after 1917. married Seaborn T. Henderson 28 April 1872.

Although Anne Hill and her husband, the Rev. Elias Wells Story, did not live to experience the War Between the States, all but two of their children lived through these turbulent times in Georgia and the whole South.

The "Southern Confederacy," published in Milledgeville, Georgia, printed as its 13 April 1861 headline: WAR! AT LAST BOMBARDMENT OF FORT SUMTER COMMENCED! This headline heralded the onrushing conflict that was to obliterate a world of ease, beauty, and phenominal prosperty for some and, at least for others, a time of comparative comfort with a prose of a bright future.

As history has recorded, an indignant Confederate cabinet, called to discuss President Abraham Lincoln's message on his proposed reprovisioning Fort Sumter, met and debated angrily. General P. G. T. Beauregard advised that preparations to take the fort, should the order come, were underway. Robert Toombs of Georgia, numbered among the first to call for Southern independence, rose and, in carefully chosen words, told the cabinet what they were about to enter into and what the score would inevitably be.

His warning was disregarded--Fort Sumter was fired on and reduced. The sons of Georgia went forth to war, some gladly, some reluctantly; but they went. Two of Anne Hill and the Rev. Elias Wells Story's sons--James Osgood Story and John Wesley Story--fought and died in the war.

1864 brought an insidious undercurrent of fear. North Carolina began to whisper about peace. Conscription age was widened to include ages 17-50 years. No substitutes under any circumstances. Money was pretty, but useless, and the proposal by men of foresight to use cotton as a basis for the economy was shouted down by lesser minds still dazzled by gold. Power to suspend the write of habeas corpus was given to President Jefferson Davis. General Braxton Bragg was given the position of chief of staff. Even Jefferson Davis' admirers thought he had lost his mind.

One diary entry of the period reads, "There is another party, politicians and men with no stomach for fighting, who find it easier to cuss Jeff Davis and stay at home than to go to the front with a musket...God help my country!"

Great glee spread through the North. But the end was not yet. In spite of the crippling Confederate defeat at Vicksburg, Mississippi, and the blow to Robert E. Lee's army at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, in 1863, Federal reverses in early 1864 were the order of the day in the West, while Lee, Jeb Stuart, and Wade Hampton were holding General U. S. Grant back in the Virginia wilderness.

But 1864 also brought General William Tecumseh Sherman to Georgia. At Dalton, General Joe Johnston was watching Sherman with a beady eye. He warned President Davis of the critical situation due to soggy weather, lack of troops, and lack of spirit in those he had. The one thing he wished they lacked--but didn't--was Sherman.

It was President Davis' position to take the offensive, beat Sherman to the draw, and join General James Longstreet in Tennessee for a shot at Ohio and Kentucky. Where were the troops and what should he use for transport, Johnston parried wryly. The general's realistic attitude, as usual, irritated the president. The seed of distrust grew and flowered in Jefferson Davis' mind.

While the world waited with bated breath, a slow-point counteraction, like a measured minuet, began between Sherman and Johnston's armies. For a month Johnston, realizing that his army was the only one left intact besides Lee's in Virginia, and that on it and him depended the fate of Atlanta and the deep South, executed a calculated retreat from Dalton. With an absolute sense of timing and perfect hold on his men, the general maneuvered his deliberate retreat in such a fashion as to make it a kind of offense. He hurt Sherman at Resaca, stalled him at Cassville, made crossing the Etowah almost impossible, and settled in on the heights of Kennesaw Mountain. June found Sherman nearer to Atlanta but not the victory he was so desparately seeking.

Sherman had the utmost respect for Johnston and his tactics.

But--Johnston was removed from command from pure pique on Jefferson Davis' part, and Sherman was home free. By Christmas of 1864, nothing remained in the wake of Sherman's whirlwind passage from Atlanta to Savannah but a swath of ashes and broken dreams. The Confederate sun, so high on 13 April 1861, had begun to set.

Chapter VI

LINE TWO: JOHN STUBBS, JR.

(John, Sr.[1])

John Stubbs, Jr. was born in 1754 in South Carolina, and died in 1792. He married Mary Bridges, daughter of William Bridges. There is doubt, however, that she was the mother of his first two children, Lewis and John Stubbs. Their mother may have been a Miss Fraser. He married a second time, to Drucilla Dawkins.

John Stubbs, Jr. is readily distinguishable from his father--John Stubbs--by the fact that he signed his name, while the senior John Stubbs used a mark. Receipts in indent files suggest that John Stubbs, Jr. was an officer in the Revolutionary War. We do not know his rank. He served with the Rangers. He appears in a listing of Colonel William Thompson's regiment, dated 8 July 1775. On the list, his age is given as 21 and he is described as being 5'9" tall.

John, Jr. represented his deceased brother, Stephen Stubbs, as administrator after the war. Following John, Jr.'s death, his brother William Stubbs applied for Letters of Administration on the estates of Stephen Stubbs.

John Stubbs, Jr. and Mary Bridges had two sons and three daughters:

Lewis Stubbs, born ca. 1781, married Mary Stubbs. Although he was living as late as 1825 in Cheraw District, South Carolina, his will was probated in Pike County, Alabama.

John Stubbs, born 1783.

Dorcas Stubbs, married Joshua Moses Odom. They had one daughter, Mary Ann Odom, who married Spencer J. Strickland.

Elizabeth H. Stubbs, married (1) _____ Terrell,
(2) _____ Wise.

Mary Stubbs, married _____ Frazier.

Lewis Stubbs[3]

(John, Jr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Lewis Stubbs, Sr. born ca. 1781 in Edgefield District, South Carolina, married Mary Stubbs. He served in the War of 1812, and later settled in the northern part of Pike County, Alabama, in 1833.

Lewis Stubbs and his wife Mary had two sons and one daughter:

Permelia Ann Elizabeth Stubbs, born 1810, died 1856, near Orion, Alabama, buried China Grove, Pike County, Alabama, married Jason Carlisle, born 1808 in South Carolina.

William Stubbs.

Thomas I. or J. Stubbs.

Permelia Ann Elizabeth Stubbs[4]

(Lewis[3], John, Jr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Permelia Ann Elizabeth Stubbs, born 1810, died 1856, married Jason Carlisle. He was born 1808 in South Carolina.

Jason Carlisle and his family migrated in about 1830 from Marlboro County, South Carolina, to Jefferson County, Alabama. The first land he owned in Alabama was 81 acres, which he purchased 30 December 1831 near present day East Lake section of Birmingham. He later moved to Pike County, Alabama, but returned to Jefferson.

However, Pike County once again called. Jason and Permelia Ann Elizabeth Stubbs returned and settled near Orion in 1856, where they lived for about 25 years. The 1850 census of Pike County, Alabama shows him as a prosperous farmer with 13 slaves. He owned 1,000 acres of land.

During the War Between the States, four of their sons served the Confederacy, the youngest of whom was killed in battle. The war was costly to the family in other ways: another son died soon after the close of the war of disease contracted during his tour of duty. Jason Carlisle's slaves had been set free, and he sold considerable land for Confederate money, which became worthless at the end of the war.

In 1872, the family moved back to Jefferson County, Alabama, where Jason Carlisle spent the remaining years of his life, until his death on 13 January 1880. He is buried in the Cahaba Baptist Church cemetery in Trussville, Alabama.

Permelia Stubbs and Jason Carlisle had eight sons and three daughters:

Charles Milton Carlisle, born 3 May 1827 in Marlboro District, South Carolina, died 28 May 1896. He married Emily Rabb, daughter of Robert and Patience Rabb, in 1848.

William L. Carlisle, born 8 June 1828.

James T. Carlisle, born 4 December 1829, died 14 September 1848.
John E. Carlisle, born 11 March 1832, died 12 July 1833.
Francis Jason Carlisle, born 5 April 1834, died 24 January 1914.
Mary Ann Elizabeth Carlisle, born 30 April 1836, died 2 May 1936.
Joel Malachi Carlisle, born 11 June 1838, died 24 November 1928.
Richard Moses Carlisle, born 18 May 1840, died 22 July 1916.
Thomas J.J. Carlisle, born 11 February 1843, died 1864.
Martha E. Carlisle, born 20 April 1845.
Hamutal A. Carlisle, born 27 September 1851, died 29 January 1941.

Chapter VII

LINE THREE: JAMES STUBBS

(John, Sr.[1])

James Stubbs, Sr. was born in 1755, in South Carolina, and died 25 August 1825, in South Caroina.

While we know that he served in the Revolutionary War, the only proof of James Stubbs, Sr.'s service is in the pension application of his brother, Lewis Stubbs. Lewis' application claims that he "served as a substitute for James Stubbs and William Stubbs." In Marlboro County, South Carolina deed records, James Stubbs, Sr. is referred to as Captain James Stubbs. He did not live long enough to qualify under the Pension Act of 1832.

The name of James Stubbs, Sr.'s first wife is unknown. However, we do know they had four sons and four daughters:

Rebecca Stubbs, married Charles M. Smith. They were living in Mississippi in 1859.
Celia Stubbs, born ca. 1779, married George Bristow, born ca. 1781.
David Stubbs, born 1 April 1785, married Anna McDaniel in March 1810. She was born 23 January 1793.
Amelia Stubbs, born ca. 1790, died unmarried.
John Stubbs, married Anne Fuller McDaniel, originally from Granville, South Carolina.
Silas Stubbs, died 1821, married Rebecca _____, born ca. 1793.
Alexander Stubbs, born in Marlboro County, South Carolina, died there in October 1821. He married Lucy Sparks, daughter of Daniel Sparks and Martha Pearce, between 1814 and 1816. Lucy Sparks was born 1788, died July 1852 in Marlboro County, South Carolina.

James Stubbs, Sr. married second Sarah Tallent Miller, widow of Abner Miller, on 1 January 1806. Sarah was the daughter of Thomas and Hannah Tallent of North Carolina. She died 20 May 1839.

The second marriage of James Stubbs, Sr. produced one daughter:

Elizabeth R. Stubbs, born 20 October 1807, died 16 July 1887. She married Holden Wade Liles, born 19 January 1802, died 3 August 1858. They had six sons and five daughters:

James Stubbs Liles, married Eliza Jane David.
Joseph R. Liles, married Catherine McRae.
Thomas Nelson Liles, died in infancy.
Sarah Frances Liles, married John David Pearson.
Mary Franklin Liles.
William Julius Liles, died in infancy.

Elizabeth Jane Liles, married John Miller.
Benjamin Ingram Liles.
Sherwood Holden Liles, died in the War Between the States.

Celia Stubbs[3]

(James[2], John, Sr.[1])

Celia Stubbs was born ca. 1779 in Marlboro County, South Carolina. She married George Bristow, born 1781, and lived and died near Bruton's Fork in Marlboro County.

Celia Stubbs and George Bristow had one son and one daugher:

Martha Jane Bristow, married Wiley Jones.

Alexander E. Bristow, born 25 October 1823 in the Bruton's Fork area of Marlboro County, South Carolina. He married Flora Emanuel on 20 June 1867. Flora was born 26 November 1836 and died 23 May 1912. Alexander served as a captain in Company D, South Carolina Volunteers, 26th Regiment, of the Confederacy during the War Between the States. He later served as sheriff of Marlboro County.

Alexander E. Bristow and Flora Emanuel had one child:

Harris Bristow, born 2 June 1870, died 16 September 1912. He married Minnie L. Stubbs, born 10 July 1882, died 30 May 1962. She was the daughter of John James Stubbs and Mary Ellen Van Hook (1859-1915).

David Stubbs[3]

(James[2], John, Sr.[1])

David Stubbs was born 1 April 1785, died ca. 1860 in Houston County, Texas. He married Anna McDaniel, born 23 January 1793, daughter of James and Ann McDaniel, on 1 March 1810.

David Stubbs served in the War of 1812. He was living in Gibson County, Tennessee in 1836; the next year found him living in Dyer County, Tennessee. In 1844, he moved to Smith County, Mississippi. He and his family then moved to Rankin County, Mississippi.

David Stubbs and Anna McDaniel had three sons and five daughters:

Columbus Washington Stubbs, born 5 January 1813, died August 1813.
Margaret Jean Stubbs, born 1815, married Ira Bridges.
Permela Ann Stubbs, born 20 December 1817.
Silas M. Stubbs, born 7 March 1820.
Peter Leonard Stubbs, born 5 July 1822, died 9 September 1916, married Caroline Dunagan.
Lucy C. Stubbs, born 12 May 1824. She married J.A. Smith and lived in Navarro County, Texas.
Mary M. Stubbs, born 1828. She married J.C. Dunagan, brother of Caroline Dunagan (wife of Peter Leonard Stubbs), and lived in Freestone County, Texas.

▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒

Peter Leonard Stubbs[4]

(David[3], James[2], John Sr.[1])

Peter Leonard Stubbs was born 5 July 1822 in Marlboro County, South Carolina, died 9 September 1916. He married Caroline Dunagan on 24 November 1845 in Rankin County, Mississippi. Born 28 January 1830 in Montgomery County, Mississippi and died 25 November 1880, she was the daughter of John C. Dunagan and Lucy Cook. Peter Leonard had lived in Memphis, Tennessee until December 1844, when he relocated to Mississippi, where he married. Both Peter Leonard and Caroline Dunagan Stubbs are buried in Wortham, Freestone County, Texas.

Peter Leonard Stubbs and his family arrived in Texas in 1848 with the family of his father, David Stubbs, near Crockett, Houston County, Texas. In December of that year, Peter Leonard moved his family to Freestone County, Texas, and settled near Cade on Tehuacana Creek at Patton Bridge Crossing. His second son, Hiram B. Stubbs, was one month old when the family arrived in Texas.

At this time, Fairfield, in Freestone County, Texas was a town of only 25 families. Lumber was brought in from East Texas by wagon train, as well as groceries that were brought in from Galveston. Peter Leonard Stubbs operated one of these wagon trains. When his two sons--John James and Hiram B--were old enough to sit on a wagon seat and drive the team, they became drivers along with several Blacks employed by their father. The trip to Galveston took four to five weeks. On one trip, when they brought back molasses in barrels, they reached home only to discover that one of the barrels was empty. The boys had tasted the molasses all the way home.

Peter Leonard Stubbs was elected Tax Assessor and Collector of Freestone County, Texas, and served for six years. During this time, he owned and operated the first hotel in Fairfield, Texas. He also operated a grocery business at Woodland, near Bonner.

In 1864, Peter Leonard Stubbs joined the Confederate forces during the War Between the States. He became a member of Captain John Oliver's company of Colonel Bradford's regiment and was stationed at Galveston Island, Texas. He was never engaged in any battle. His 18 year old son, John James, joined the same company and regiment and was also stationed at Galveston Island.

In early 1874, Peter Leonard Stubbs moved his family to Wortham, Texas, and operated the Wortham Hotel. This hotel was the terminal site for stage coaches; teams were changed for the continuation of the trip to San Antonio, Texas. His sons--John James and Hiram B.--operated the first general merchandise stores in Wortham.

Peter Leondard Stubbs and Caroline Dunagan had three sons and three daughters:

John James Stubbs (1847-1936).
Hiram B. Stubbs (1848-1941).
Columbus C. Stubbs (1850-1914).
Martha Stubbs, married J.R. Knight.
Margaret Stubbs, married Kemper K. Hackett.
Nancy Stubbs (1863-1943), married C.J. Turner.

In his later years, Peter Leonard Stubbs--"Uncle Peter" as he was lovingly called--could be seen driving every morning in his phaeton, drawn by a big white horse, visiting the homes of his children, to see if all were well. His usual routine was to walk in the front door and out the back.

At the time of his death, on 9 September 1916, his obituary in the Wortham, Texas newspaper read, in part: "Too much can not be said of his generous acts of kindness to those less fortunate that he in this world's goods. He lived a Christian life and practiced high principles in his daily life."

⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂

John James Stubbs[5]

(Peter Leonard[4], David[3], James[2], John, Sr.[1])

John James Stubbs was born 8 January 1847 near Jackson, Mississippi, and died in 1936.

Prior to 1880, John James began acquiring land for farming and cattle ranching. His cattle brand--still used by the family--was registered in Freestone County, Texas, in 1881.

In 1905, he was one of the founders of the First National Bank of Wortham, Texas, and served as president. He later was a founder of the First State Bank of Wortham. He served as president of this bank for 15 years.

He first married Amanda Robertson (1848-1875) of Fairfield, Freestone County, Texas, where she is buried. This marriage produced twin daughters:

Mollie Stubbs, married John H. Bristow.

Maggie Stubbs, married Charles Calame.

John James Stubbs married second Mary Ellen Van Hook (1859-1915) of Corsicana, Navarro County, Texas. They had two sons and two daughters:

Minnie L. Stubbs, married first Harry Bristow.

They had one son:

John Alexander Bristow, born 1904

She married second Allen Hatch.

Nell Ruth Stubbs, married Lynn Adams.

Van Hook Stubbs, born 31 August 1884, Wortham, Freestone County, Texas, married Modene Tucker of Teague, Freestone County, Texas, in 1929.

LINE FIVE: STEPHEN STUBBS

(John, Sr.[1])

Little is known of Stephen Stubbs. He was born in Cheraw District, South Carolina, but dates are unknown. He served as a private in the 3rd Continental Army Regiment during the Revolutionary War, according to Revolutionary War file #7507 in the South Carolina Archives. He died either during the war or shortly thereafter--before 1785. His brother, John Stubbs, was administrator of Stephen's estate. Shortly after John's death, William Stubbs made application for letters of administration for Stephen's estate.

▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒ ▒

Robertson Stubbs[4]

(John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Robertson Stubbs, born ca. 1818 in South Carolina, married first Elizabeth Webb, born 1829-1831 in South Carolina. She was the daughter of Ervin and Rebecca Webb.

Robertson Stubbs and Elizabeth Webb had five sons and two daughters:

Benjamin J. Stubbs, born 1849 in South Carolina, died 26 December 1923, married (1) _____, (2) Harriet _____.
Annie Jane Stubbs, born 1851.
Green Berry Stubbs, born 15 January 1852, Troy, Pike County, Alabama,, died 20 February 1906, Gonzales County, Texas.
Della Stubbs, born 1855, in Pike County, Alabama.
Robert Stubbs, born 1856, in Pike County, Alabama.
James Ervin Stubbs, born 15 June 1859, in Alabama.
John Turner Stubbs, born 3 September 1860, in Alabama, died 11 June 1944, Stamford, Jones County, Texas.

Robertson Stubbs married second Vicey Ann Homes, born in Alabama, on 25 December 1866. Earlier that year, Robertson Stubbs signed a $200 marriage bond with Vicey Ann's father, J.W. Homes. Unless he had legal reasons not to do so, Robertson Stubbs would forfeit the money if he failed to marry Vicey Ann Homes.

Robertson Stubbs and Vicey Ann Homes had two sons and two daughters:

William M. Stubbs, born 25 December 1869, Troy, Alabama, died 4 March 1932, Denison, Grayson County, Texas. He was a produce salesman.

Virginia Stubbs, born 1871, Alabama.

Mary A. Stubbs, born 1875, Alabama.

Thomas N. Stubbs, born 1877, Alabama, died 15 January 1942, Travis County, Texas.

For unknown reasons, Vicey Ann Homes Stubbs is not listed in the 1870 census of Pike County, Alabama, with the other members of her family.

In the 1850 census of Marlboro County, South Carolina, (microfilm T-6, roll 296, page 147) Robertson Stubbs is listed with his wife Elizabeth and son Benjamin.

Robertson and Elizabeth Stubbs sold land in Marlboro County, South Carolina on 12 December 1851 to M. Townsend and William Pearson. (Deed Book S, page 32.) In this deed, Robertson's deceased father is named as John Stubbs and his mother as Nancy Stubbs. This is his last appearance in Marlboro County, South Carolina records, except that he is shown as being alive in 1909. In that year, Robertson participated in the final distribution of his grandfather's estate, that of Thomas Stubbs, Sr.

Robertson and his family moved from South Carolina to Alabama and are listed in the 1860 census for Pike County. In 1852, he obtained land in Macon County, where he was living when he deposited in the Elba Land Office full payment for 119.79 acres of land on 1 Septmber 1858. By the time the 1860 federal census was taken, Robertson and his family were living in Pike County, Alabama. Their post office was Troy, Alabama (microfilm T-7, roll 4, pages 182-183.) This census shows James Ervin Stubbs as being one year old. Robertson's wife Elizabeth is not found after this 1860 census. It is believed she died shortly after childbirth. The son, Robert, disappeared between 1860 and 1866.

When Robertson Stubbs moved into Pike County, Alabama, and settled near the town of Troy, he was truly in the back woods! The town had only recieved its name about 20 years before Robertson arrived. The State of Alabama was admitted to the Union in 1819 and Pike County was formed two years later. It was so large--comprising what is today six counties, including Macon, where Robertson later lived before he moved to Texas--that it was called the "State of Pike." From the late 1830s until the mid-1840s, the town of Troy consisted of two hotels, one store, one saloon, one blacksmith shop, one doctor's office, two lawyers' offices, and a post office. The Troy area of Pike County was so much in the back woods that ministers were rarely seen, and when they traveled through the area, made appointments up to one year ahead. By the time Robertson is found on the 1860 census living in Troy, the town had increased somewhat. Until the beginning of the War Between the States, progress in Troy could be called slow but steady.

Robertson Stubbs served in the Confederate Army during the War Between the States. He was a member of Compancy C, Alabama Regiment Infantry. His service records show he was captured by Union forces under the command of Major General Henry Thomas, USA, on 15 December 1864, near Nashville, Tennessee. He arrived at the military prison in Louisville, Kentucky, sometime during the five-day period ending 20 December 1864. He was transferred from Louisville to Camp Douglas, Chicago, Illinois, on 20 December 1864, arriving there on 22 December 1864. He was discharged from Camp Douglas 20 June 1865, in accordance with General Orders No. 109, A.G.O., Washington, DC, issued 6 June 1865.

Robertson Stubbs arrived in Texas at the end of a period of transition for the state. Long before the War Between the States, ranchers were exploring and settling on the rich grazing lands and broad prairies of the vaguely defined province of Texas, formed in 1721. This virgin territory suffered and toiled through over a century of Mexican and American contention for sovereignty--through the Louisiana Purchase of 1803 and the tragedy of the Alamo in 1836. By September of 1836, Sam Houston had assumed command of the hard-nosed settlers, retreated to the San Jacinto River--where he turned and crushed the Mexican Army, issued a Declaration of Independence, adopted a Republican Constitution, and was elected the first president of Texas. The United States recognized Texas the following year.

Hardly had the dust settled on all this furor, when war clouds obscured the brilliance of Texas' rising sun. Deaf to Sam Houston's advice, Texas jumped on the southern bandwagon and signed up with the sessionists on 28 January 1861. Following the end of the war, the state suffered the rigors of Reconstruction.

By the mid-1870s, when Robertson Stubbs and his family arrived in the state, the people of Texas were once again in control of their own destiny. Texas had a new constitution that is still in effect today. The state enjoyed a rapid recover from the effects of the War Between the States. The history of that period, up into the 20th century, is one of agricultural and industrial expansion beyond ones wildest dreams. Before the War Between the States, cotton farming produced 431,645 bales in 1859. By 1880, when Robertson Stubbs was living in Harrison County, Texas, farmers ginned 1,000,000 bales of cotton. By the end of the century, more than 3,000,000 bales were produced.

Green Berry Stubbs[5]

(Robertson[4], John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Green Berry Stubbs was born 15 January 1852, the second son of Robertson Stubbs and Elizabeth Webb.

He married first _____ Nelms. They had one son, John Robert "Jack" Stubbs, born 30 October 1874 in Lavaca County, Texas, died 15 February 1958 in DeWitt County, Texas. He married first Anna C. Barth (1874-1900) on 17 August 1899. They had one child, Anna Mae Stubbs, born 18 May 1900 in Concrete, DeWitt County, Texas, died 1 March 1960, married Wallace W. McCormick. John Robert Stubbs married second Johanna "Josie" Green on 6 November 1901. She died in 1903. They had one son, John Raymond Stubbs, born 10 October 1903. John Robert Stubbs married third Elizabeth Harris on 26 December 1906. She was a widow with several children. This marriage produced one child, Maude Adele Stubbs, born 27 September 1907.

Green Berry Stubbs married second Harriet Hester Kelley on 12 December 1878 in Colorado County, Texas. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Jenkins. Harriet Hester Kelley was born 8 October 1861 in Pike County, Alabama, the daughter of David Alexander Kelley and Mariah Louise Brown. It is likely the Kelley family and Green Berry Stubbs knew one another in Pike County, Alabama; they both moved to Texas in the mid-1870s and settled in Gonzales and DeWitt counties.

Green Berry Stubbs seems to never have been in very good health. He moved his family several times, farming in Grimes, Lavaca, DeWitt, and Gonzales counties. He never bought land in any of these counties. The family lived for the longest period of time near Concrete, Texas, in DeWitt County. When their twins--Byran and Culberson--were small, Green Berry and Harriet moved to Gonzales County. While living there, Green Berry broke his leg and lay in a field all night before being found; he developed pneumonia from this experience and died.

Following her husband's death, Harriet Stubbs and her children moved back to the area of Concrete, Texas. She remarried later in life to a Thomaston widower and blacksmith, John W. Maness.

Green Berry Stubbs and Harriet are buried in Nelms Cemetery, Concrete, Texas.

Green Berry Stubbs and Harriet Hester Kelley had three sons and five daughters:

Aldora "Dora" Stubbs, born 4 or 11 April 1880, died 4 or 5 September 1967. She is buried in Sunset Memorial Cemetery in San Antonio, Texas, beside her first husband. She married (1) Edgar Clinton Jordan on 4 June 1896 in DeWitt County, Texas. He was born 21 June 1877 in Mississippi and died 11 August 1939. They had four sons. Aldora married (2) the Rev. J.S. Henderson.
Lannie Stubbs, born 20 October 1881, died 3 February 1958.
Vada Stubbs, born October 1885, died 1907, buried in Concrete, DeWitt County, Texas.
David "Dave" Robert Stubbs, born 12 January 1889, died 30 September 1959, DeWitt County, Texas, buried Nelms Cemetery, married Edna Mae Weber on 1 March 1922. She was born 11 January 1894 and died 10 October 1964.
Delmo Stubbs, born 23 July 1891, died after 1980, married (1) Leo Rheu, (2) Walter Victor Couch, born 1878, died 27 November 1957, buried Sunset Memorial Cemetery, San Antonio, Texas.
Myrtle Mae Stubbs, born 9 February 1895, died 10 September 1980, Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas, married John Lawrence Coppedge on 18 April 1912. He was born 28 October 1882 and died 30 September 1951. They are both buried in Stevens Cemetery, Concrete, Texas.
Bryan Stubbs, twin, born 29 July 1897, DeWitt County, Texas, died 12 October 1937, Lavaca County, Texas, married Mary Skrehot on 20 November 1923. She was born in 1897 and died November 1988. They are both buried in Nelms Cemetery, Concrete, DeWitt County, Texas.
Culberson Stubbs, twin, born 29 July 1897, DeWitt County, Texas, died 14 December 1981, Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas, married Willie May Timm. She was born in 1898 and died October 1988. They are both buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas.

James Ervin Stubbs[5]

(Robertson[4], John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

James Ervin Stubbs was born 15 June 1859 in Alabama and died 3 March 1950 in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas, where he is buried. He married Marella Johnson, born 6 November 1864 in Alabama, on 29 November 1880. Marella was the daughter of F.M. Johnson and Mary Clark. She died 10 March 1951 in Gause, Milam County, Texas, and is buried in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas. Both are buried in the Norwood Cemetery.

James Ervin Stubbs came to Texas with the other members of his family around 1874. He is listed in the 1880 census of Grimes County, Texas, living next door to his brother Green Berry Stubbs and his sister Annie Williamson. Marella Johnson and her family were living three houses away.

Following their elopment on 29 November 1880 to Bellville, Grimes County, Texas, they moved to the community of Rita, Burleson County, Texas, where 16 children were born. Two daughters died in infancy and one was stillborn. These babies are buried in the Babyland section of the Macedonia-Hix Cemetery in Rita, Burleson County, Texas.

Land and Deed records in Burleson County, Texas show that the 12-year period between 1887 and 1899 was an active time for James Ervin Stubbs. He acquired a total of 1,436 acres of land through various transactions.

In 1900, the population of Burleson County, Texas was 18,367. Life in the county was agricultural; residents lived on farms, small and large. They raised cotton, corn, and most of their food. Except for the railroad, transportation consisted mainly of wagon, buggy, or surrey. Social activites revolved around the church and school with picnics and other parties.

In 1912, James Ervin Stubbs purchased 275 acres of land from J.W. Porter. This tract of land is still called "the old Stubbs place," by present day family members. Among their neighbors were John and Martha Webb, brother of James Ervin Stubbs' mother, and Annie Williamson, his sister. Other neighbors were Mr. & Mrs. John Spradley, whose daughter Ruth married Charles Stubbs; Mr. & Mrs. Will Bain, whose daughter Vanna married Stoney Stubbs; Mr. & Mrs. Bev Terry, whose son married Clara Stubbs. The family moved to Gause, Milam County, Texas, before 1932 and later to Hearne, Robertson County, Texas.

James Ervin Stubbs and Marella Johnson had nine sons and seven daughters:

Mary Elizabeth Stubbs, born 18 December 1881, died 18 April 1883.
Addie Belle Stubbs, born 11 November 1883, died 30 December 1886.

Stoney Jackson Stubbs[6]

(James Ervin[5], Robertson[4], John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Stoney Jackson Stubbs was born 25 February 1889 in Rita, Burleson County, Texas, died 1 February 1977, Dallas, Dallas County, Texas, buried in the Norwood Cemetery, Hearne, Robertson County, Texas.

He married Vanna Bain in 1912. Born 7 November 1888 in Wheelock, Robertson County, Texas, Vanna died in 1976 and is buried in the Norwood Cemetery, Hearne, Robertson County, Texas.

For a time, Stoney Jackson Stubbs and Vanna Bain lived with her mother, Molly Jones Bain. They worked the Bain's farm for a few years and then moved to a farm in Rita, Burleson County, Texas. Several years later, they returned to the Bain farm.

In 1921, Stoney Jackson Stubbs bought a farm in Goodland, Texas, in association with his brothers Frank Stubbs and Ernest Stubbs. They produced a successful crop and the following year sold the farm, when offered a good price. (Today, the land is worth approximately $1,500 per acre.)

After selling the farm, Stoney Jackson Stubbs bought land in the lower Rio Grande Valley. The tract of land was known as "the Schultz place." He farmed until 1926, when the combination of drought and insects caused a financial disaster. At this time, he and his family moved further into the lower bottom to a location known as "the Moth place." Here Stoney Jackson Stubbs worked as a tenant farmer. He later moved to Mumford, Texas, where he rented a farm from a Colliers family and worked it for two years.

He then moved his family to Hearne, Robertson County, Texas, where he was employed by the Humble Pipe Line Company. He worked at the company's pump station. During this time, he also worked for Clement's Grocery and the Pacific Fruit Express. Stoney Jackson Stubbs retired in the mid-1950s.

Stoney Jackson Stubbs and Vanna Bain had two sons:
Stoney Milton Stubbs, born 21 November 1913 in Caldwell, Burleson County, Texas.
Volney Bain Stubbs, born 24 October 1919 in Caldwell, Burleson County, Texas.

Stoney Milton Stubbs[7]

(Stoney Jackson[6], James Ervin[5], Robertson[4], John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Stoney Milton Stubbs was born 21 November 1913 in Caldwell, Burleson County, Texas.

He was graduated from Texas A & M University in 1934. He did graduate study the following year and was then employed by the Soil Conservation Serivce. In 1937, he returned to Texas A & M University as an instructor.

In 1941, having a Reserve Officer commission, Stoney Milton Stubbs was required to join the active services due to World War II. By this time, he had become licensed as a certified public accountant, so he was given the military duty of examining and auditing U.S. Army post exchanges throughout the southwest United States.

Being a field artillery officer, he was transferred to Fort Sill, Oklahoma. There, because of the intensifying nature of the war, he was given a refresher course and assigned a unit. Following a transfer to Brownwood, he was reassigned to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, as a gunnery instructor for field officers.

Stoney Milton Stubbs' war service then led him to overseas duty on islands in the Pacific Ocean. Shortly thereafter, Japan surrendered and peace was declared. While on one of the islands, Stoney was standing in an evening's chow line when a friend told him he had just seen his brother, Volney Bain Stubbs. The two brothers had a joyful reunion; neither knew the other was nearby!

Upon receiving his military discharge in 1946, Stoney returned to Texas A & M University, where he taught for one semester. He then accepted employment in the producing department of the Humble Oil Company. In 1948, he became an assistant dispatcher for Frozen Food Express. Stoney Milton Stubbs worked his way up the corporate ladder and became president in 1947 and chairman of the board and chief executive officer in 1962. When he became the CEO of Frozen Food Express, the company's sales were just in excess of $9,000,000; when he retired in 1968, sales were $65,000,000.

Stoney Milton Stubbs married first Florence Mary Weller. They had one son and one daughter:

Stoney Milton Stubbs, Jr., born 8 September 1936 in Fort Worth, Tarrant County, Texas.

Lucile Elizabeth Stubbs, born 16 April 1941 in Houston, Harris County, Texas.

Beverly Wayne Stubbs attended Texas A & M University with the goal of a degree in aeronautical engineering. His goal was interrupted by World War II, when at the age of 19, he entered the U.S. Army Air Corps.

Following training in the corps as a flight officer and bombardier at Carlsbad Army Air Field, New Mexico, he served in a B-17 crew with the 8th Air Force in the European Theater from 1944 to 1945. He was assigned to the 390th Bombardment Group in Framingham, England. While on his 13th mission over Germany in August 1944, his aircraft was shot down and he was captured in the North Sea.

He was a prisoner of war from August 1944 until April 1945 when his stalag was liberated by a unit of General George S. Patton's 3rd Army at Mossburg, Germany.

With the end of the war, he returned to Texas and again enrolled in Texas A & M University. After a year in school, he reenlisted in the Army in 1950. He trained in antiaircraft artillery and served in Korea until 1952.

Until his retirement in 1966, he was assigned to several installations in Germany, Taiwan, Vietnam, and throughout the United States. One of his assignments was at Fort Meade, Maryland, where he worked on the prototype of the first air defense command and control system.

After retiring, he returned to El Paso, Texas, and entered Texas Western College where he obtained his bachelor's degree in mathematics.

This degree led him to his first job as a programmer at the General Dynamic's facility in Fort Worth, Texas. He went on to acquire an associate degree in computer science and returned to El Paso in 1977 to work at the University of Texas at El Paso as a systems programmer. He later worked at the White Sands Missle Range in New Mexico, and in 1980, in the software support group of Fort Bliss in El Paso.

Frank Marion Stubbs[6]

(James Ervin[5], Robertson[4], John[3], Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Frank Marion Stubbs was born 20 November 1893 in Rita, Burleson County, Texas, and died 7 May 1986 in Denton, Denton County, Texas.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War I. His ship was sunk in the Atlantic Ocean, but he was rescued.

A recent letter from Frank's widow, Bernice Martin Stubbs, makes for interesting reading, not only about his Navy experience, but their life together. Her letter reads:

> It may seem strange that Frank didn't tell me much about his Navy experience, but righter after the war, my brothers didn't tell us many either.
> I asked Frank why his ship went down. He said they had to sail without lights because of German ships and that two of our own ships collided. One them was his.
> From what I gathered from his life boat experience, the ships were going down so fast that all the men didn't get on life boats and Frank was in the icy water for sometime before being picked up.
> Frank told that when he was discharged from service, the government did not pay his railroad fare home. He bought a ticket for as far as he could with a little money left to wire home for more. I don't know why he didn't wire home before he left the base; I suppose he was too anxious to get away from there.
> Frank was sitting on the train by an older man and they struck up a conversation. The man asked Frank where he was from, etc. Frank told him he had a ticket for a certain town on the way--and he had used almost all the money he had to get that far. He explained he was going to get off the train and wire home for more money to complete the trip home.
> Pretty soon, the man got up and went into another coach of the tain. After talking to the passengers, he passed the hat for money for Frank to finish his trip home. Frank had no idea what the man was doing.
> The man returned and dumped a lap full of money in Frank's lap. Although Frank didn't want to take the money, the man made him do so. It more than paid for his trip to Gause.
> Frank was born on the old family place in Rita. His folks didn't buy the Porter place until Frank was a teenager. The old Porter place is where Frank and I made our home. Daddy Stubbs [James Ervin Stubbs] had bought it from J. W. Porter; the house was built on a hill and was a very substantial house. If the house were still there today it would be a historic site.

The Stubbs children had a wonderful life together. Thirteen children in a family makes it a lot of fun along with the hardships. I'm sure it wasn't always easy for a young couple [James Ervin Stubbs and Marella Johnson] to go into a strange community, begin a family, make a living, and save enough to buy their own home. At one time, they owned almost 1,000 acres. [Actually over 1,400 acres.]

There is a 600-acre pasture back of mine and Frank's place that, when we first married, we rented. Daddy Stubbs had sold it years before, but it was still called the "Stubbs Pasture."

Frank and I have ridden our horses over there to search for and to take care of our cows. Riding over 600 acres of thickly wooded areaa was a task for me--the brush being so thick. I could hardly get through.

But when one is young and in love, life is a great adventure. Frank and I enjoyed it.

As is true with many other members of this portion of the Stubbs family, Frank Marion Stubbs is buried in the Macedonia-Hix Cemetery in Hix, Burleson County, Texas. The cemetery is located at the Macedonia-Hix Baptist Church. The church was originally named Macedonia, However, because there was another church in the county by the same name, Hix was added for distinction. The Hix community was formerly known as Fraimville and before that as Chance's Prairie.

Frank Marion Stubbs was an active member of the Macedonia-Hix Baptist Church, serving as a deacon. He and his wife, Bernice Martin, were married in the church on 14 July 1931. No issue. Born 17 July 1900 in Rita, Burleson County, Texas, Bernice was the daughter of S. D. Martin and Laura Jackson.

In order that historical information could be verified to permit the erection of a historical marker at the church, Frank and Bernice traveled to the Baptist seminary in Fort Worth, Texas to research the early minutes of the Little River Baptist Association, which the church's congregation had joined in 1860. This was prior to its membership in the Southern Baptist Convention. Their efforts resulted in an accurate history of the church being written and the erection of the historical marker.

Frank Marion Stubbs retired from the Humble Pipe Line Company on his 65th birthday with approximately 30 years service with the company.

Ernest Milton Stubbs[6]

(James Ervin[5], Robertson[4], John[3],

Thomas, Sr.[2], John, Sr.[1])

Ernest Milton Stubbs was born 11 May 1899 in Rita, Burleson County, Texas, died 21 March 1986 in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas, where he is buried.

He married Harriet (Hattie) Willis Bartholomew on 28 May 1927 in Fort Worth, Tarrant County, Texas. She was born 19 November 1909 in Twin Mountains, San Angelo County, Texas, the daughter of John Henry Bartholomew and Leona Louvenia Poulan.

Ernest Milton Stubbs went to work for Humble Pipe Line Company on 26 March 1925 in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas; he was employed by the company for 33 years and 3 months. As a young man, he farmed with his brothers and bought and sold cattle.

He enjoyed fox hunts, bird hunting, and golf. Hattie's hobbies include golf and bridge. She is a member of the the National Association of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Her membership number is 645781. She is a member of the First Baptist Church in Hearne.

Fox hunts were a real thrill for Ernest Milton Stubbs. He and a group of his pals, namely Louis Parnell, Ronald Rhode, Osborn Wallace, and Penn Wolf frequently participated in them.

Norman L. McCarver's Hearne on the Brazos describes the action of a typical fox hunt:

> The first morning of the hunt, a pack of young hounds, all under two years old, was given its baptism in the art of fox chasing. They jumped a young grey fox within fifteen minutes after the master of hounds ordered leashes off at 6:15 a.m. The trail was picked up almost on top of the fox which was dining on persimmons and the race was brief but exciting. About forty hounds were up close when the fox, unable to make it to a place of safety, died as the leaders surged upon him.

Ernest Milton Stubbs and Harriet Willis Bartholomew had two daughters:

Jimmie John Stubbs, born 3 July 1929, Hearne, Robertson County, Texas.

Madeleine Sue Stubbs, born 27 March 1933, Hearne, Robertson County, Texas.

Jimmie John Stubbs, the compiler of this family history, was born 3 July 1929 in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas. She was named for her two grandfathers: James and John.

She married James Robert Boswell, Sr., on 3 July 1946 in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas. He was born 25 December 1924 in Hearne, Robertson County, Texas, the son of Norman Breckenridge Boswell and Ruby Josey.

James Robert Boswell served in the United States Marine Corps during World War II, reaching the rank of corporal. He served in the Pacific Theater, where he participated in the invasion of Saipan and Tinian. He returned to the United States in late 1944. At that time, he was chosen to attend the V-12 Program of the Officers Candidate School; he attended Oberlin College in Ohio until 1946. While a student at Oberlin College, James was named "Little All American" on the school's football team. He was discharged at Camp Lejuene, North Carolina in February 1946. In 1949, he was graduated from Texas A & M University with a degree in civil engineering. While attending Texas A & M University, he received an athletic letter for his playing on the school's football team.

Following college, James went to work for Humble Oil & Refining Company in June 1949. He retired from Exxon, USA in California in 1984 as Drilling Manager. His various company assignments took him to Libya and Kula Lumpur, Malaysia. While James and Jimmie John were living in Malaysia, their son Randal Milton Boswell and grandson Michael Shane O'Conor visited them.

James is a member of the Liberty Masonic Lodge, Registered Professional Engineers, and the Methodist church. Jimmie John is a member of the (Austin, Texas) Thankful Hubbard Chapter of the National Association of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Her membership number is 689287. She is also a member of the Austin Genealogical Society and the Austin Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

WILL OF

The State of South Carolina)
Marlborough District)

I Thomas Stubbs Sen. of the district and State aforesaid, do make and ordain the following as my last Will and Testament.

1st. I give and bequeath to my daughter Rebecca wife of Peter Hubbard, and to her heirs forever, one negro boy named Collin now in her possession.

2nd. I give and bequeath to my daughter Honor, wife of William Hubbard and to her heirs forever, one negro boy named Henry who is now in her possession.

3rd. To the children of my deceased daughter Tabitha who married Anderson Whickar, I give and bequeath one negro girl named Sarah and her increase, to them and their heirs forever, which said girl I have heretofore given to said children by deed of gift.

4th. To my beloved wife Lucy Stubbs(in case she survives me) I give and devise the tract of land on which I now reside, containing one hundred acres more or lefs, also one other tract adjoining the above containing thirty acres more or lefs that I bought of William Fields, during her natural life, or widowhood: and if my said wife Lucy so survuving shall at the time of her marriage or death leave one or more children of my body then I give and devise the said tracts of lands to the said child or children so liveing, to them and their heirs forever: but if my said wife Lucy should die leaving no issue of my body, or marry, than it is my will and desire that the said tracts of land be sold by my executors and the money arising therefrom, be equally divided among my surviving children, the issue of any deceased child takeing the share of any of my children who may be then dead, except the share of my son Thomas Stubbs, I will and direct to be appropriated, applied, and

Office of Judge of Probate
Marlboro County
Bennettsville, S. C. 29512

disposed of in the same manner and with the same limitations, as is directed with respect to his distributive Share of the proceeds of the Sales of my other lands and personal property, by the sixth clause of this will.

5th. I give and devise to my friend Holden W. Liles, one hundred acres of land whereon my son Thomas Stubbs Jr. now lives--composed partly of the Bowyer tract, and partly of the Terrel tract (over) In trust neverthe lefs , to permit my said Son Thomas Stubbs Jr. to use and enjoy the same, to his sole and seperate use, without rendering an account of the rents and proffits, during the term of his natural life, and after his death to convey the same to the children of the said Thomas Stubbs Jr. lawfully begotten that may be liveing at the time of his death to them and their heirs forever, and should he die, leaveing no heirs lawfully begotten surviving him, I give the said tract of land to the said Holden W. Liles, in trust to permit my daughter Lucy Ann Goodwin to use occupy and enjoy the same during her natural life and after her death to convey the same to the heirs of her body, to them and their heirs forever, should she die leaveing no such heirs, then the said trustee to divide the same equally among my surviving children the ifsue of any deceased child takeing the share of any of my children who may then be dead.

6th. All the rest of my property real and personal (except the negroes) consisting of various tracts of land, together with my stock of horses, cattle, hogs, farming utensils, corn, fodder, and other property of every description whatever, I desire my executors hereafter named to sell upon the most advantageous terms, and I hereby give them the necessary power for that purpose, and request them, from the proceeds of such sale, as also all monies that may be on hand at the time of my death, and that may be collected from all debts due me, first to pay all my debts, funeral expenses and legacies herein specifically named, and secondly that they divide the balance equally among my surviving children, the ifsue of any deceased child takeing the share of any of my children who may be then dead except the share of my son Thomas Stubbs. I desire my executors to retain and vest the same in some secure fund, or other safe securities and pay the interest thereof annually to my said son Thomas dureing his natural life, and should he die leaveing ifsue lawfully begotten, then that they secure the principal to be paid to such ifsue on their arriving at lawful age to receive the Same as well as the interest annually for the maintenance & education, and in case my said son Thomas should die leaveing no such ifsue, then my said executors are desired and (over) and directed to continue the principal sum so secured; and pay the interest in like manner annually to my daughter Lucy Ann Goodwin dureing her life. Should she die leaving a child or children living at the time of her death, in that case I give and devise the principal and accrueing interest of said sum to them and their heirs forever; should my said daughter Lucy Ann die leaving no such ifsue, my will and desire is that the sum be equally divided among my surviving children, the ifsue of any acceased child takeing the share of any of my children who may be dead.

7th. The negroes that I may possess at the time of my death and which are not herein otherwise disposed of, my will and desire is that they be equally divided among all my children, and my wife Lucy Stubbs share and share alike, the child or children of such of my children that may be dead takeing the share that their parents would have taken had they been alive, The Share of my wife Lucy nevertheless determinable upon her death or marriage and in such case reverting to my children and divided among them as herein before named, and if my said wife Lucy at the time of her death or marriage shall have a child or children of my body then such child or children to take an equal share with the rest of my children by former marriage, except also the share of my son Thomas Stubbs Jr. I give and devise unto my aforesaid friend Holden W. Liles in trust neverthelefs , that he permit my said son Thomas to use and enjoy the same to his sole and seperate use without rendering any account of the hire and proffits during his natural life, and after his death to take the same course and subject to the same trusts and limitations as is contained in the fifth clause of this my last will and testament in relation to the tract of land on which he now resides

8th. I give and bequeath to Lewis, Mary Ann, and Clarisa the children of my Son Benjamin Stubbs deceased the sum of one hundred dollars each to be paid to them by my executors respectively— as they arrive at the age of twenty one, or the females marry, and should eith of said children die before attaining that age the share of such as may so die be equally divided among the survivors.

9th. As to my household furniture my will and desire is that (over) it be equally divided among my wife Lucy and my daughters that are liveing, share and share alike.

10th. And Lastly I do nominate constitute and appoint my friends John Terrel and Ebenezar W. Goodwin executors to this my last will and testament, hereby revoking, annulling, and makeing void all former wills or bequests by me heretofore made and declare this to bemy last will and testament.

In Witnefs whereof I have hereunto set my hand and Seal this Sixth day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty seven.

EPILOGUE

> Their story is not graven only > visible symbol, woven into the > stuff of other men's lives.

> (Thucydides quoting Pericles)

To us--the descendants of John Stubbs and Rebecca Conner--tombstones, obituaries, and memories often seem to be all that remain of our forefathers. However, when one reflects upon the above quotation, one realizes that tombstones, obituaries, and memories are not all that remain of our forebears. Each and every individual who descends from our ancestors takes on some of the chracteristics of those ancestors.

We--the descendants of John Stubbs and Rebecca Conner--are the warp and woof of the intricate carpet of life that has been handed down to us from them. The way we talk, look, act, walk was determined, in part, in the generic structure of John Stubbs and Rebecca Conner. Thus, they are still with us "without visible symbol" and are "woven into the stuff of other men's lives."

It is my hope that this history may serve as a family bond, replacing the old ties of physical propinquity and known kinship. Scattered though we may be, we are still all "cousins" with a seven-hundred year history of triumph over adversity.
